Welcome

Welcome to the User's Guide to Lead the Way. We created the User's Guide to assist you in finding your way around the curriculum and tailoring your learning so that you can find just what you need to know in the moment. Look here to find details on what to expect in each section of the curriculum:

- What are the key areas covered?
- What can you expect to learn in each section?
- What are the resources you may wish to download and consult on each topic?

The Department of Housing and Urban Development is committed to maximal accessibility in all its products and projects. A tutorial on navigating Lead the Way using its accessibility features is available on the “How to Use Lead the Way” page of the online Lead The Way. (Select the “About” link and then the “Next” button.) The tutorial gives detailed examples of these features and will guide you through pages that illustrate their use.

Lead the Way conforms to the legal requirements of Section 508 as well as the broader standards of the W3C Accessibility Guidelines version 2.0 (level AA). All non-decorative, information-laden images have Alternative Text associated with them; all text is adequately contrastive with background images and background color; all content is semantically tagged with correct HTML5 and ARIA markup; non-textual media are accompanied with equivalent presentation of content accessible to those with hearing or visual disabilities; navigation and other interactions are fully available to keyboard-only and screen reader users; “skip links” are provided on every page for the convenience of keyboard-only and screen reader users.

When an alternative accessible presentation or interaction is offered, e.g. as an alternative to a “hotspot” interaction, it is activated by a consistent mechanism positioned at the appropriate location in the tabbing sequence of the page, namely by an “Accessibility” link depicted by the Google accessibility stick figure, displayed and announced by a screen reader when given focus. The site is thus intuitive in its navigation through assistive technology and the keyboard. All Lead the Way PDFs have been retagged using HTML5 markup and exceed the requirements of the Acrobat Accessibility Checker.
